There was some reason for speaking of the late Chinese Minister to England as the Marquis Tseng. for he was actually the possessor of the title Hou, inherited from his father and conveniently rendered by our English word Marquis. But it was ridiculous to assume that because the sons and daughters of an English Marquis are called by courtesy Lord This and Lady That, therefore the sons and daughters of the Marquis Teeng should follow a rule unknown in China and figure as Lord Kingenst, Lady Blossom, and so on. It is at least equally absurd to speak of the son of the Vicercy Li Hung-chang, who is now Chinese Minister at Tokio, as Lord Li Even the father is not referred to as an Earl, though he owns the title Fe, and the son has assuredly no claim whatever to the singular. distinction accorded him. A kindred want of accuracy and propriety is shown when, as frequently happens, the Chinese Minister to England and Foreign Ministers at Peking are spoken of as Ambassadors, and their residences as Embassies instead of Legations. The title Excellency is also sown rather more broadcast than it ought to be. The only British officials in these parts who can properly claim it are the been injured by the fall of a scaffolding at On Bombay-Naval Commander in chief and the Gover- the Travellers Olub in Pall Mail. nor of Hongkong. NANKING.

(N. C. Daily News' Correspondents)

In obedience to orders from the Taungli amen the Hie a have been taking a census of all the foreigners within their respective districts. Ch'ung Mu, the Shang-yuen Hien, called in person yesterday at each mission bouse to make the acquaintance of the missionaries and verify the returns made to his office. It is very gratifying to know that he has returned to his post, after a long absence. He want nto retirement more than two years ago for a period of mourning. I believe. The vigilance of the authorities here is shown by the order forbidding the Titsan Fastival his year. The great throngs which usualy visit the famous shrine on T'sing-liangshap during this moon have not been permitted to assemble this year. The past week has therefore been much more quiet than was anticipated, though the daily increasing number of students who have come up for the examinations gives the streets an unusually lively appearance.

The shops destroyed by last Monday's he are being rapidly rebuilt. The real number of buildings destroyed was fifty. but the families unhoused number many nore. The loss, as estimated by the neighbours, varies all the way from two hundred | On Londonthousand to eight million dollars. This justrator the unreliability of Chinese estimates. As an extra stock of goods had been purchased for the examination meason it is possible that two hundred thousand dollars may be a very fair estimate. The are originated in an opium den.
